Further talk ensued, during which he recognized the voice of a doctor's about going to Cincinnati and not let her father know of their movements for a week. The girl began crying and the fellow answered roughly. She begged him to take her back home. "Take you back home," said he in a rough laugh. "Let a bird out of a cage after you have fairly caught it? Oh, no! I love you too well for that." By this time the boat was nearly across the river, and Sam said to the stranger: "Mister, the current's pooty switt to-day; there's a right smart ireshet Sam poled it against the bank with such violence that over went the man onto the shore. Sam let the boat drift away, and turning to the girl, amidst the howls and curses of the man in the water, said: "Reckon ye don't want him no more do you?" "No, no!" she exclaimed. The girl being in doubt about her ability to drive home, even after she had reached the other shore, Sam let his boat go down the stream. "What are you going to do?" asked the girl. "Boat ye down to the steam-boat laudin" for your town." "That will be a dreadful lot of work all for a silly girl." "I've got a darter uv my own," said he. Pretty soon he stopped Sam. "I'm slowin' up so's to reach there about dusk." "Just what I wanted to ask you to do." "Thought so." "I've got a darter uv my own." Everything was favorable, and no one saw the carriage drive off the

THE H. J. E. AHHENS DRY GOODS BAZAAR.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ahrens takes this mode of extending her sincere thanks to the friends and patrons of the above establishment for the very liberal patronage, as well as for the confidence and trust reposed in her husband. Mrs. Ahrens also begs to state that the business will be continued by herself and son, Ed. W. H. Ahrens, under the above firm name, and by strict integrity and close attention to business, trust to retain the confidence and to merit a continuance of all former patronage of the H. J. E. Ahrens Dry Goods Bazaar, as well as the public in general. In consequence of the affliction cast upon herself and family through the death of her husband, just at a time when business should have been pushed with all the energy possible (during the month of December) the business, as all can readily understand, could not receive the proper attention. On the contrary it was much neglected, customers frequently not receiving the attention due them, and consequently many goods are now upon the shelves that could have been disposed of either before or during the holidays. As a result of this, as well as a result of the fact that for this season's trade an unprecedentedly large stock of Dry Goods had been brought on, the stock now is more than as large again as it should be. In fact, with only a few exceptions, it is as complete in assortment, style, &c., as it need be in the midst of the busy season. As everybody is aware, stocks at this season of the year should be at their lowest ebb, and in order to thus put it in proper shape, and, more especially, to facilitate as much as possible the winding up of the estate by the executors, Mrs. Elizabeth Ahrens and Ed. W. H. Ahrens, they will from this day on make every effort to reduce the same. To do this the entire stock of Staple and Fancy Dry Goods, Notions, &c., which, as already stated, is full and complete in all its departments, is offered for Cost and Less than Cost.

All who are in need of anything pertaining to the Dry Goods line are advised to call early and avail themselves of the advantages now offered, and which, under other circumstances than those mentioned, could not be offered. It is hoped that the patrons and the public in general will not look upon this as simply an advertising dodge. The facts and the reasons given, and which will be carried out in good faith, it is trusted, are sufficiently obvious to all and may be justifiable.
